Spill the Beans, the Gaslamp Quarter coffee and bagel shop, is opening a second location, this time in Seaport Village.

STB Seaport Village

"We decided on Seaport Village because of the proximity to the Convention Center, top neighboring hotel brands and Little Italy," said Dave Jones, owner. "We saw an opportunity to bring a local favorite to one of San Diego's greatest tourist destinations. Similarly, we were, and continue to be, extremely excited about the vision and modernization of Seaport Village moving forward. The future of Seaport Village is incredibly bright and we want to do our part in successfully rebranding a very important piece of San Diego tourism. We hope to be the preferred coffee and bagel brand for joggers, tourists and passerby as they enjoy the greatest view of America's finest city."

Spill the Beans is owned by the Verant Group, which also includes barley mash, Mavericks Beach Club and five other locations across San Diego. Spill the Beans will offer counter service with a few tables for outdoor seating.
